

I was going to write a letter about the state of the Labour Party and the performance of Gordon Brown as Prime Minister.

However with a negative story about both seeming to crop-up most days and either directly or otherwise, involving people like Cherie Blair, John Prescott, Lord Levy, Wendy Alexander, Charles Clarke, Stephen Byers, David Abrahams, Bob Symonds, Chris Mullin, Frank Field, and countless others, I think it might be best, at least for a few weeks, to let events take their course and just observe.

There is nothing worse for serious politician like Brown to be the subject of ridicule and a long queue of people in his own Party seem ready to make such a contribution, This suggests that Brown must have made many political enemies within his own ranks over the years and for those whom he crossed it certainly looks like payback time.
